

Good morning one last time everyone!

We have until the end of the month for questions here and you may contact me anytime afterwards.

Class materials will be available here for the next 90 days.

There are some specific things I hope you take away from this class. The whole goal of this class was to take the mystery out of how piracy works. Also, I want you to know there is only so much you can and can't do to stop it. Worrying, stressing, and most of all, getting angry doesn't do anything but upset you, so make sure to temper it into something useful. We, as authors don't have a large industry group supporting us or to help stop piracy at this time. The industry could even be considered a large part of the problem. I said it in lesson eight, and it bears repeating, the key here is to not let it become something that steals you joy in writing. Do what you can and move on, until it's time to deal with it again.

I will take questions here on the forum until we are closed down at the end of the month. You can ask on social media via PM/DM or via email at meriengrey (at) Yahoo (dot) com pretty much indefinitely. I enjoy teaching and don't mind questions. I will not give you anything resembling legal advice so please don't ask. I can only tell you what I have found via my research.

To close, I want to thank From The Heart Romance Writers for inviting me to teach. Most of you know how near and dear to me this chapter is. Finally, I want to thank all of you one last time, who have taken time out of your busy schedules to follow along and make the effort not only to take this class, but to take all the other classes and read all the other materials along with mine so that you can become not only amazing authors, but competent business women to be reckoned with. Well done.

Warm regards and best of luck in all your endeavors,

Merien Grey
